WATERPROOF

Family: Pieridae—Sulphurs & Whites

Male Calfas have solid brown borders, females have spots in the borders.

Orange Sulphur

Colias eryx

Always at least some orange on dorsal. DFW marginal spots on females usually surrounded by brown. Common throughout WA except the peninsula.

Clouded Sulphur

Colias philodice

No orange on dorsal, bright yellow to yellow-orange ventral with little black scaling. DFW marginal spots on females often fuzzy and slightly connected to discal area. Common east of the Cascades with occasional strays to the west side.

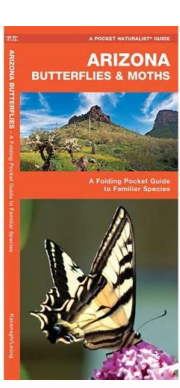

Western Sulphur

Dark yellow ventral, often with dusting of black scales and dark ring around VHW spot. Mostly in South Central WA and parts of Olympic Peninsula.

"What should I do after the war is over?" On cold nights, Butterfly's sword emits a crimson light that radiates a sense of warmth. "Survival is never easy for people like me, the people who feed on dirt and blood. I have no time to think about anything else," her cold voice scoffed from the shadows. Even after several straight days of fighting, Butterfly showed no sign of fatigue. As a well-trained mercenary, she is capable of retaining and recovering her stamina throughout an exhausting war...
